Local Graphic Design Firm Wins Five National Awards

Garson Design Services Wins for Work Done for Gaw Van Male Law Firm; Paradise Valley Estates' Quail Creek; Renovo Communities; and TLW Public Relations

(Fairfield, CA) – Solano companies looking for well designed advertisements, logos, corporate brochures and other collateral design work won't have to look too far. Garson Design Services (GDS), located in Fairfield, recently won five American Graphic Design Awards from Graphic Design USA, a national publication. GDS's designs were among the few pieces honored out of over 10,000 entries.

"We're very happy that so much of what we submitted was received so well by the judges," says Steve Garson, owner of GDS.

The awards were given for an advertisement done for Gaw Van Male, Solano and Napa counties' largest law firm; several corporate branding pieces done to promote Quail Creek, an assisted living facility at Paradise Valley Estates; two logos done for Renovo Communities, a land development company; and a direct mail promotional postcard done for TLW Public Relations, a marketing and public affairs consulting business.

"I think Steve's work is the best in the region; it's always exceptional," says Deloris Roach, owner of TLW Public Relations. Roach wrote the copy for her company's winning entry.

The American Graphic Designs Awards program is sponsored by Adobe Systems. It honors new works in print, advertising, packaging, internet, broadcast and motion graphics, among other categories.

GDS will receive a Certificate of Excellence for each of its winning designs and has been notified that all are eligible for inclusion in Graphic Design USA's 2007 Awards Annual. The 300-page publication becomes available this month (January) and is expected to be read by over 100,000 colleagues and clients.
